Edmund Rice (1638) Association Newsletter

416 Shirley Place, Valdosta, GA 31605-6422

Vol. 85, No.3 Summer 2011

The Edmund Rice Association publishes the newsletter four times a year: 1) winter, 2) spring, 3) summer and 4) fall. The summer newsletter is devoted to the annual September reunion and includes a description of the program and registration information. The other three newsletters include information of more general interest to our members. We invite all cousins to submit their genealogical information, newsletter corrections, items of interest, family articles and pictures, obituaries and queries. Send them to our newsletter editor: Susan Berger at editor@edmund-rice.org

President's Column

Greetings, cousins!

There has been some discussion recently about updating the Association's logo. Our current logo is a detail from an engraving of the old Edmund Rice homestead (a site we generally find time to visit each year at the reunion). This logo was adopted ten years ago as a replacement for the previous one, deemed to be inappropriate. (More on that later) For many years, in fact, there had been no logo at all, as the ERA newsletter came out with a completely different graphic design on the cover for each new issue. Then, in 1996, the newsletter took on a new look and acquired a logo at the same time. This logo had the form of a heraldic blazon, roughly described as "(argent, on a chevron engrailed (sable) three cinquefoils of the same, between three stag heads couped (proper)". I have put the colors in parentheses in this description because the rendition on the newsletter was plain black-and-white, without the stippling or cross-hatching that were traditionally used to represent heraldic colors. For heraldry buffs, this design is a dandy, being neither too simple nor too complex. If it had been a brand-new design invented for the sole use of the Edmund Rice (1638) Association, there would be no objection to its taking the form of a coat of arms, even though such things are a bit old-fashioned -- after all, we are obviously interested in history and other old-fashioned things.

Unfortunately, however, this design was lifted from the coat of arms once granted to a certain William Rice of Buckinghamshire. As many of you know, this William Rice figured in one of the most durable hoaxes ever perpetrated on the genealogical community. In 1911, a cousin of ours compiled and printed a book alleging that his research at the British Museum, etc., etc., had shown that Edmund Rice was a grandson of this armigerous William. As a result, it is now literally "carved in stone" on a monument in the North Wayland Cemetery that Edmund Rice was born in Buckinghamshire. Nonetheless, all the best modern scholarship, and even the results of our Rice DNA project, combine to refute this claim.

Unfortunately, there are no known portraits of Edmund Rice, and so we cannot adopt Edmund himself as our logo. We could use an attractive symbolic design if somebody came up with an original one. We could use a photo of the house or of some other distinctive artifact associated with Edmund. We could use Edmund's (very antique) signature or a very modern rendition of his name. We could stay with the current logo. I think I can promise there will be some lively discussions at the reunion in September. Bring your ideas!

I thought members of our association, living in the NYC area, would enjoy reading this article. I saw it in the Off-Duty section of the Air Force Times. Maybe a relative is one of the Civil War veterans interred at this Cemetery.

Historical Markers

NYC cemetery ID's Civil War graves; Veterans Administration issues gravestones

The first Civil War casualty to be buried in Green-Wood Cemetery in Brooklyn, NY was a 12-yr old drummer for a New York regiment. Clarence McKenzie, a local boy fatally wounded in an accidental shooting in Maryland, was buried June 14, 1861, two months after the Union garrison at Fort Sumter, S.C., surrendered to Confederate forces. McKenzie was followed to the grave 12 days later by Adolph Vincens, a 23 year old London-born jeweler who was the first civil war casualty buried at Green-Wood.

By the time the war ended four years later, about 200 more soldiers and sailors were buried Green-Wood., established in 1838 in what was then a rural section of Brooklyn. In the decades after the war, thousands of others would join their comrades – and even some of their one-time enemies – in the historic cemetery. Today the 478 acre expanse of greenery and statuary covering the cemetery's rolling hills is believed to be the final resting place of about 8,000 Civil War Veterans. A team of volunteers and staff has spent nearly a decade trying to identify all those graves.

Using the cemetery's burial records, plus government, military and privately owned documents available online, Green-Wood's historian Jeffrey Richman estimates 3,000 to 4,000 more are scattered among the cemetery's more than 560,000 interments. The Civil War dead buried at Green-Wood include unknown privates and famous officers, buglers and Medal of Honor recipients, Yankees from Maine to Iowa, fathers, sons and brothers, even 75 Confederates, including two generals. None of the original gravestones for the Confederates give any indication they fought for the South, an intentional omission being rectified by the installation of new granite markers provided by the Veterans Affairs Department. Some of the grave markers are so worn the inscriptions can't be read, while others are overgrown by grass or have sunk below ground level. Many of the veterans lie in unmarked graves, and it's only by checking the cemetery's detailed maps that individual burial plots can be located. Part of the project includes placing new granite markers on the graves of, marked and unmarked, of 2,000 of the Civil War veterans. So far about 1,300 of the VA markers have been installed.

The cemetery's project includes compiling brief biographies for each Civil War veteran interred at Green-Wood. Some 4,600 are included on a CD the cemetery is selling for $10.00 a copy. According to the information on the CD, burials of Civil War veterans at Green-Wood continued through the 1930's and into early 1941, when 94-year-old Henry Stamm and 101-year-old Joseph H. Smith of East Orange, New Jersey were laid to rest. With several thousand graves still to be identified, Richman said it's unclear whether Stamm and Smith were the last in a long line of blue and gray to be buried at the cemetery, a line led 150 years ago by the drummer boy from Brooklyn.

Frederic A. Wallace, Framingham's Town Historian, is the author of "Ancestors and Descendants of the Rice Brothers of Springfield, Mass.: David Rice, William Marsh Rice, Caleb Hall Rice, Frederick Allyn Rice, Seven Generations – 1704 to 2004". This is a serious genealogy and history of the family descended from David Rice, who first appeared in the records of Milton and Weymouth, Mass., around 1725. Special attention is given to four brothers, born in Springfield, Mass., who went to Texas in the early to mid-1800's to seek their fortunes. One, William Marsh Rice, became the founder of Rice University in Houston. Their story is a classic example of a family torn apart by the Civil War. DNA evidence, obtained through the ERA's Rice Family DNA Project, is presented to resolve longstanding questions about the origins of this line. From the author, $30 (includes postage to the continental US): Frederic A. Wallace, 53 Eaton Road, Framingham, MA 01701
